ADDENDUM

Lisbon Hotel (Drovers Inn, Poole's Country Store & Post Office)
Northeast corner of Frederick Road (MD 144) and Madison Street
Jennifer K. Cosham, 1/4/2010

The Lisbon Hotel still stands on the north side of MD 144 in Lisbon, one of the few older buildings in the town not either demolished or restored. The frame wing on the rear of the building, which Cleora Barnes Thompson (1978) and Jean S. Ewing (1972) felt was the Caleb Pancoast House, constructed c. 1804-5 and used as a religious meeting house until 1820, seems to have been standing in 1987 at publication of Celia Holland's Old Homes and Families of Howard County, Maryland, but was gone prior to 2000.

Circa 1804-1805

The Old Lisbon Hotel faces south on the northeast corner of Route 144 and Woodbine Road. It is a three bay wide, one room deep, two story high, gabled roof (running east-west) brick (laid in flemish and English garden wall brick bond) structure with a two story high frame addition on its east wall and a two story high brick hyphen which connects the brick house to Caleb Pancoast's original one story high frame dwelling, reputed to be the oldest house in Lisbon.

The brick house features a central rectangular entrance surmounted by a four light transom, proportionally scaled and vertically aligned fenestration and apertures decorated with stretcher brick, flat arched lintels.

Historically noteworthy as the old Lisbon Hotel of 1860, its frame north wing was the first meeting house in Lisbon for those wishing to meet for religious services.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The old Lisbon Hotel faces south on the north east corner of Route 144 and Woodbine Road. It is located on some four $\frac{1}{4}$ acre lots, which now comprise .88 \pm acres of ground. It is a three bay wide, two story high, gabled roof (running east-west) brick (laid in flemish bond and English garden wall brick bond) house with central, rectangular, open bible and cross paneled door, surmounted by a four light transom, flanked by two rectangular shuttered windows.

Fenestration is rectangular, double-hung, vertically aligned and proportionally scaled, decorated with splayed brick, flat arched lintels. A very early two story high, two bay wide frame addition extends eastward from the east wall of the brick house. Its gabled roof (running east-west) is an extension of the brick structure's gabled roof. Along the entire five bay wide south facade of the brick house and its extension runs a two story high shed roofed open porch supported by six square posts with a wooden railing running around the perimeter of its second floor. The original second floor east bay window of the brick house was altered to hold a rectangular entrance on to the porch. An additional first floor entrance on this wall is located in the east bay of the frame addition.

The east elevation of the Lisbon Hotel's frame addition holds two first and second floor rectangular windows and two almost square attic windows. An open bible and cross paneled first floor entrance, located in the north bay, is surmounted by a three light transom. The gabled roof slopes downward on the north elevation to create a salt box effect.

An old wooden one and a half story high, two bay deep, gabled roof house (running north-south) is attached to the north wall of the brick house's west side by a two story high, one bay wide, one bay deep, shed roofed, brick connector. The connector's west wall holds a rectangular first floor entrance, decorated with a stretcher brick, flat arched lintel, which at one time was surmounted by a gabled roof portico, the outlines of which can be seen over the entrance, which has a brick stoop with north and south steps. A second floor, rectangular window rests north of the entrance.

The old frame building, reputed to be the oldest building in Lisbon, features a semi-octagonal first floor bay window crowned by a semi-conical roof on its west wall, a square brick chimney centered into its north wall, and a second tall brick chimney rising from the center of its east wall's gable roof.

The condition of the building is in a deteriorated state with the old frame structure on the north very close to ruins and its gabled roof already caved in. One of the most significant buildings historically. (Please see significance statement), it is hoped that the building will be renovated and restored by its owner or sold to someone who will appreciate its heritage.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Old Lisbon Hotel is significant historically and architecturally.

Architecturally, it is noteworthy as one of five brick houses in the town of Lisbon, which was constructed in the early nineteenth century and with the development of the Baltimore-Frederick Turnpike became a rather grand hotel with its frame addition and two story high front porch in the 1860's.

The stylistic detail of the old brick house is simple and straight forward, featuring a central, rectangular entrance, proportionally scaled and vertically aligned fenestration and apertures decorated with stretcher brick, flat arched lintels.

The brick building is connected to an older frame building on the north by a two story high hyphen with rectangular west entrance once covered by a gabled roof portico.

Historically this old frame building connected to the brick house is most significant, reputed to be the oldest dwelling in Lisbon, constructed by Caleb Pancoast, circa 1804-1805. It is Caleb Pancoast who laid out Lisbon in $\frac{1}{4}$ acre lots, the first to conceptualize in his mind the village at Lisbon. This one story high frame house is presently in a shambles with its gabled roof almost totally deteriorated. It is not beyond the thought of restoration but is in need of immediate attention.

The brick section of the house facing south on Route 144 is significant historically as well as architecturally for with the advent of the railroad, Lisbon became a popular summer resort for a time and this once private home became the Lisbon Hotel, noted on the 1860 Martenet Map (see attachment 3).

Not only is the old Lisbon Hotel historically and architecturally noteworthy but it is significant in the area of religion.

Caleb Pancoast was evidently a man of integrity and religious convictions, ecumenical in character, for upon the completion of his home, he invited the area residents to meet there for religious services of their bhoice until another church or meeting house could be provided. This house was used for such religious meetings until circa 1822 when the Freestone Church was built which was utilized by the Methodists, Episcopalians, the Brethren and any preacher of the gospel who received the approbation of the Board of Trustees.

OLD LISBON HOTEL

The religious life of Lisbon was begun on an ecumenical note which we see now in the 20th century new town of Columbia at Interfaith Center which accommodates the Roman Catholics, a Jewish Synagogue, the Lutherans and the Baptists, all under one roof.

For these reasons the old Lisbon Hotel should be considered, along with the Village of Lisbon, for recommendation to a National Historic Landmark District and for inclusion into the State Critical Areas Program.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This brick and frame building faces south, L-shaped, 5 bays by 1 with 3 bays by 1 in the wing running north along the west end wall. Here there is a change in the roofline as the smaller end is ~~also~~ connected to the main house.

Two stories high, a two story porch runs along the south wall supported by square posts with a plain railing upstairs on square balusters. The A-frame roof/ridgepole runs east-west, a large chimney rises near the center of the house, a smaller chimney ~~at~~ inside the north end wall of the wing.

A bay window in three parts is an obviously late addition to the west side of the wing, providing a display window for a shop about 1900.

Part of the back wing of this house is thought to be the oldest house in the area, "New Lisbon", built by Caleb Paucost about 1804-05. (He also willed land to a "Union Church" open to all denominations, in perpetuity, of which no trace now remains.)

The house was enlarged at two later periods. One account calls the long front section a resort hotel especially popular before the railroad was extended to Frederick, Hagerstown and west. It has also been called a drovers inn for men delivering herds of cattle and sheep to market in Baltimore, before rail and truck transportation.

At the turn of the century the house became Poole's country store and Post Office, surrounded by the rich farmland on all sides.

Of brick & frame construction the Linton Tavern, now deserted, is swiftly falling into an advanced state of decay.

At the facade, S. elevation, the structure is, in its entirety (including the E. end frame extension), four bays in length with two doors positioned the 2nd and 5th bays from the ~~SE~~^{SW} corner. Windows of this level are of 9/6 pane sash. At the 2nd level are 5 bays all but one of which are windows of 6/6 pane sash. There is a S. elevation two storey galleried porch.

On the rear wall, flush with the W. end, is a small single storey two bay brick wing. To its N end is another addition which is of one bay length and of frame construction.
